Our Chief Pilot said ABQ is fine for nonstop, it would only become an issue if it starts to get over 85 degrees which it wont at night.

Thanks

Unfortunately it doesn't necessarily get cool enough at night there sometimes. For example, tonight looks to be cool enough where it gets between 60-65 at 8pm but tomorrow night it is forecast to still be close 75 degrees at night. So we couldn't guarantee it until it got closer to the date. I am having my chief pilot run the numbers for ABQ, it has a much longer runway that will make a big difference in going nonstop. I will advise soon if ABQ would be nonstop. Do you know how many passengers it would be?

Thanks

Hi Peter

They wanted Departure at 8pm on Sept 8th, so the cooler evening temp should help, if not, maybe I could get them to depart from ABQ airport, just a maybe, since they live in Sante Fe, i would think SAF is there first choice.

Company name

Jege, LLC would be fine to use for invoice

Thx

Larry

If they are able to depart first thing in the morning when the temperature in SAF is cool, we can make it nonstop on our Hawker 800xp as it would have to be about 60 degrees F or cooler to go nonstop. Otherwise they would need a fuel stop due the high elevation and high temps and the price would increase. Assuming this, we can do it for about $22K with all taxes and fees included on our Hawker 800xp. I will send over the quote, what company name should I put it under?

Thanks

Hi Larry,
Suran passed along the message about this flight. We may be able to accommodate this on our 800xp. I will get a price over to you in a bit.

Thanks
