Girlfriend,

You are also such a kind person. I am so lucky to have you. Even though I have a close friend in Renee, I need and want you as my close friend here. I feel like Renee is my Ashley!! You have your sister and I have her. Luckily, I have found you and you mean the world to me.

Yes..the G thing really isn't that important but just wanted it on our agenda for a later conversation. I kept forgetting to talk to you about it.

I say you do potluck...it is fun to try stuff that others make and takes some of the load off of you. It still is hard to host even when people bring stuff so let them at least help!! I will be heavy on my potluck items, too, so that if someone is lame I can cover!

I am on the fence about the baseball thing??? Let's discuss with the guys this weekend.

you are truly the most thoughtful friend ever! thanks for your words on G...yes, she is getting lots of time off and she does need to pull her weight...and a weekend once a month i for sure thought about throwing in...we need to discuss with her...more on that later..i need to go to appliance store!

We love having pp over and seriously, I thought of making lasagna or doing chili and cornbread..something easy...I actually must get an email out to everyone thought like now...don't worry ...I will let you help... maybe everyone can bring something and then it all equals out!

loved all your emails/texts. Yes, I will totally help and want to help with cost...in fact, I feel like we should pay for it more than you because Ike was a head coach and we just appreciate that so much...like, as in, Ike and Jason should get the party thrown for them!!

I also wanted to talk to you about some thoughts I had about Gloryana...I just know that she is working way less with your new schedule and you probably feel like you aren't getting out of her what you are paying for. I had some similar issues back when I had my nanny in Orlando. I came up with some additional responsibilities and ways to get more out of Megan so that she was worth what I was paying. I know you are so good to her but I hope she is putting more effort forth with other things given she isn't working as much. If she isn't, it's time for a sit down!! I also bet that with her new found single status she isn't inclined to giving up her weekends as much as she was before; however, she needs to realize what she has with you guys and not screw that up! I just want to be here for you for support because I remember not really having anyone to ask about that sort of thing when I was dealing with megan.

Love you and looking forward to a big football focused weekend starting with Thursday evening!

Yes, I think Thursday evening would be perfect. I would love to host because my creative skills are lacking...I am good at pouring wine and making you laugh at my artistic masterpieces! Let me know what I can help get for the supplies. I will do some light/ healthy apps and the wine/drinks.
