

Dear Friend,

In today's Huffington Post, Mary Matalin and Hilary Rosen debate whether 2012 will be a political version of the film Rollerball. So beyond records, views and values, who survives their colonoscopies? Is Obama an elitist loner? Romney a phony? Newt a blowhard with 'baggage'? What's worse for GOP voters - changing wives or principles?

There's consensus that the President brained and worked his way to the top, that Romney's many 180s raise trust questions and that Newt seems to have two gears, attack and brag (Obama's as bad as Nazis; Newt's a celebrity earning $60k a speech). With Iowa in 27 days, Both Sides Now discusses whether GOP fans like Gingrich's Bobby Knight approach to politics and whether the party of family values considers fidelity to conservatism more important than fidelity to vows.
