Jeffrey, I have been giving it some thought as well ... and you know what gets me most excited is making progress, moving forward, and changing the old into the new, and my thing is about pushing young people forward giving them a platform to change our sometimes stagnant societies.... young people here need to trust their ideas, need to trust their sense of entrepreneurship and need to make breakthroughs in so many fields..... my interest spans across so many fields from art to politics to sciences (all of it)!!!!!!

what you raise is quite important and relevant to the way we have structured our societies- I sometimes feel as if we are doing is emulating the west, rather than being pioneers (instead of building tall buildings:- I feel like we just trying to catch up, without recognizing that the way that has been charted is not the only one.... which brings me to your point, how do we move forward? in science, in art, perhaps we can think of a platform that encourages new thinking, new ideas whether in art or science.... what do you think???

Cant wait to see you again and continue our conversation!!!! soon I hope!!

Hind

I've giving it some thought, and think you should consider that the next real ART and Culture is science,, in your region.. You should aspire to be the science culture minister. no competition. much more fun, new direction for women, embracing technology. Your cousin could stay art culture.. I see your excitement when you go to things like the summit, as opposed to your views on your new museums.
