It was very well received, which is normal for her. Also, she had substantive conversations with the PA and with representatives from the African Union about delivering water, as well as Jordan. That's all moving along quite well.... When, it goes it will be a very big thing, but as you know, many moving parts.

 World Economic Forum Annual Meeting 2011 - Davos-Klosters, Switzerland 26-30 January

Dear Dr Seckel,

On behalf of the World Economic Forum, I would like to invite you to our 41st Annual Meeting, taking place in Davos-Klosters, Switzerland, from 26 to 30 January 2011.

The Annual Meeting is recognized as an important global platform for all stakeholders of society. Its objective is to provide leaders from all walks of life with an interdisciplinary and holistic view of the major political, societal, technological and economic issues that will shape the global agenda in the coming year.

We would welcome your intellectual contribution in various sessions of the official programme, as it is essential to engage prominent thinkers, researchers and personalities from various disciplines in this effort. To this end, the World Economic Forum will convene over 2,500 leaders from business, government, the media, academia, science, the arts and civil society in Davos next year.

As we are in the midst of developing next year's programme, we would like to integrate your ideas as soon as possible, and therefore appreciate your response to this invitation by no later than 22 November. Please feel free to contact my colleague, Anne-Sophie Duprat, with any questions at faculty@weforum.org.

We look forward to welcoming you in January.

Yours sincerely,

W. Lee Howell
Managing Director
Head of Programming
