She's 18 years old and has been accepted to Barnard College at Columbia University. She has been to Israel more than a dozen times. She spent one summer hiking the Israel Trail with a backpack and living in a tent. She spent another working as a counselor at a summer camp in Dimona Israel for children who are victims of terrorist attacks.

She is very outgoing and a natural leader. She has done a lot of mountaineering with her father, including technical ascents of Mount Whitney and the Grand Teton, two of tallest mountains in the United States.

Tali would like to be a mifakedet lishka or serve in another capacity in one of the elite units in the IDF. She would be a great asset to any unit.

Upon her return to the United States for college, she would be a fantastic ambassador for Israel on one of the more important college campuses in the country - Columbia.
