Have been trying to respond for a couple of hours, but the internet died. Just now revived. Miracle.

The saga of the funds for taxes is very strange. We have no record of having been informed about this, prior to a letter from Deborah a few weeks ago that I sent on to you. As you pointed out to us, it's a pretty odd procedure. When we heard about it, we tried to find out whether our tax payments had in fact been reduced. To do so we needed information from the accountant Nick Nichols on taxes due, which we could then compare with taxes we paid. We've been waiting for an answer from him for almost three weeks. No word. So we have no idea whether this happened.

I don't know anything about the gifts to the grandchildren from the marital trust, but I suppose I might not have been informed about that.

I don't understand what Harry wants to discuss. I wrote to the three kids in some detail, several times, explaining the financial circumstances, but never really heard anything substantive back.

I guess I could write to Harry, telling him that RK informed me that he wants to discuss some matters with me, and ask him what matters.

What do you think?

max said that deborah instructed him to send the money directly to treasury, and potentially gifts to the grandchildren. . harry said little and only wanted to repeat, why wont noam sit with him to discuss. I said noam does not think he needs to explain himself to you. it is his money. harry said he was willing to fly to arizona to sit down so he could hear directly from noam instead of me.
