We've seen so many incredible museum projects over the years that we had to collect them all. Introducing #Museums, a tag for everything from performances and exhibits at museums, to creating brand-new institutions!

Home Is Where You Park It

By Foster Huntington

Chronicling his adventures on the highways of America, Foster Huntington captured the true makeup of the U.S. — the expansive landscapes, the rocky coasts, and the incredible vistas. He's now compiling his work into a new book, Home Is Where You Park It, that extols the virtues of living on the open road.

Hoxton Mini Press: collectable books about East London

By Martin Usborne

In hoping to capture the unique spirit of East London, Martin Usborne is launching Hoxton Mini Press, a maker of small, beautiful books. One of its first releases will chronicle the life of Joseph Markovitch, an 86-year-old man who has left London only once in his lifetime!

Lost Laurel | The Book

Lost Laurel | The Book

By Richard Friend

Richard Friend is publishing a book that examines the history of Laurel, Md., his hometown, through photographs, artifacts, and other signs of the time. It's an attempt at preserving a past that's rapidly fading into oblivion.
