

To: Joe Thakuria [REDACTED]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Wed 3/4/2015 2:48:12 PM
Subject: Re: Jeffrey Epstein

great...got it...will pass along...as well

On Mar 4, 2015, at 9:20 AM, Joseph Thakuria [REDACTED] wrote:

We're also starting a clinical ngs lab that should complete its full certification next month. So if Jeffrey's interested, I should be able to continue providing him with other types of genomic data beyond his exome on his samples free of charge.

For example, I think I'll be able to quickly follow up on his exome with a whole genome this summer. Basically, once I get through the first pass and our lab is fully set up, adding additional datasets will go much easier.

In my opinion, there's no harm (in these early days) with individuals having more than 1 genomic dataset and analyses.

Joe

On Mar 4, 2015 9:09 AM, "Joseph Thakuria" [REDACTED] wrote:

Lesley, sorry for the delayed response.

We are still in the middle of analyzing our first batch (and no ypo have gotten their results yet). Unfortunately, Jeffrey is in the second run which should be completed by end of this month. (Because his was part of a batch of about 20 that needed DNA re-extracted from saliva and resequenced.)

Please apologize for the delay to Jeffrey. On the positive side, the number of medically important genes we will deeply analyze has doubled since he submitted his sample based on the most recent literature.

Joe

On Mar 3, 2015 9:49 AM, [REDACTED] wrote:

Helloooo Joe! Checking in...it's March! do you have any news for Jeffrey?

Thanks, [REDACTED]