Bobby:

Sorry for the Invisible Man act. Just as my project was being finalized and launched, one of the four key acts decided not to be a part of it last minute. throwing everything into Helter Skelter. Luckily, one of the other performers found a great replacement, and we were able to start taping yesterday and will continue through Tuesday.

I'm leaving for Toronto on Wednesday, in concert Thursday night, back to NYC on Friday, in time to pack up for my one month in Boulder, CO to play my role as "Comforting Dad" to my oldest son, Cole, who is going to be the father of a son, born sometime between the 10th & 20th. Never expected this to happen. Anyway, that is where I'll be and will have access to my iPhone and iPad.

So, what's new with you? I guess you heard about the passing of Marty Schultz, son of George of PIP'S. There was a Memorial Service in Vegas, and I'm going to the one in Brooklyn, before taking off for Boulder. Very sad. I knew Marty, since he was a twelve year old waiter in PIP'S.

OK, I'm going back to bed. Camera crew coming in the morning.

Give your lady a hug from me. Give yourself one, too.

David
