[REDACTED], I have no idea what this is all about...do I need to do something? did you give the building the names of all those who are 'living there'? I don't know what to do with this...

Hi Lesley, [REDACTED]

As you may know the building is using a resident management system called bBuilding link. It would be of great help to the doorman, as well as to any of your guests that all info be added on the system as the doorman can then control who has access or not.

Please let Cecille know who is using each apartment and then she can issue each of you access to that specific unit. This will allow you to immediately update any info the doorman may need.

Anthony
