Subject: ANNIE - Back on Broadway!

Title: Broadway Direct - A Nederlander Presentation

BROADWAY'S MOST FAMOUS REDHEAD IS BACK

With over 700 productions of Annie in this country a year, chances are you've seen it at some point, or are at least familiar with the song "Tomorrow." The musical about an optimistic orphan during the Great Depression originally opened on Broadway in 1977 and ran for almost 6 years. Now it's being revived on Broadway for the first time since 1997. For Arielle Tepper Madover, producing Annie was a labor of love and a great philanthropic opportunity. "Annie is my favorite show in the world - it was the first Broadway show I ever saw... It was very important to me that we worked with the themes of the show -- foster care, adoption and rescue dogs. It was such a great opportunity because 35 years ago people didn't talk about these things the way they do now, so I thought we should really take advantage." Read more.
