very true...we have thought that possibly golf and tennis would be sports we pick up as we get older...

I don't know enough about it to know about length. I carefully selected them used for some golf tournaments. I will measure and we can figure out if he is interested.

He might make some money playing golf, and an alternate fitness item could be beneficial. Then... you might play. It fits your situation. You would need your own clubs.

Very nice of you. I've only seen Ike play golf one time in our 12 years! His parents brought Ike's old set of clubs to us because they were tired of keeping them for him...I mean, they thought he might want them back ;)

Sounds like you have a nice set though. I'll see if he wants them. Would they be too long for him since you are so much taller however?

No. It hurts my wrist to hit so I don't do it. A good set with big driver and a ping putter, bag and other junk. Ike can have them if he needs them.

If Ike needs clubs he can use mine sitting here in the garage.
In fact, I have been trying to strategically place them, and he should take them home with him to CT on Monday.
