Tick season has begun...

After two consecutive fairly mild winters, experts are saying tick populations are as high as they've ever been. The Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, which tests ticks submitted by residents, state they've already received record numbers of ticks for testing and as high as 50% of the ticks tested have tested positive for Lyme or another tick borne disease. Tick bites are typically painless and can often go completely unnoticed. While often the bites result in a round rash (or bullseye rash), many times they cause no rash at all. So what can you do?

Get a tick spray program!

Typical Deer Tick

Let us give you some piece of mind as you enjoy your property. Thomas J. Costello Landscaping offers a tick spray program. The chemicals used are wax based and once the area treated is dry, it is safe for adults, pets or children to play on. Typically the treatments are done 4 times a year. Our trained applicators know how, where and what concentrations to use to ensure maximum benefit and safety. Call or email us for a free estimate today
